Love Bug Learns to Serve, Protect

Blount County, Tenn.'s newest police cruiser may have a secret hippie past. Assistant Chief Deputy Archie Garner retrofitted a 1973 Volkswagen Beetle to add to the sheriff's fleet of police interceptors. The "bug-erceptor" was seized in a DUI case and boasts a new paint job, sheriff's decals and tags, a siren, radio, barred rear side windows, a side-mounted spotlight and police lights. The car even has the same number, 53, as Herbie the "The Love Bug."

It's a Nice Day for a Wet Wedding

The cake was in the shape of a pool and the walk down the aisle was replaced by a zip down a water slide as Mark Confer and Joanne Wainwright, of Nikiski, Alaska, took the plunge into marriage — literally.

The two were married Saturday in a swimming pool. The bride has swum competitively and coached high school swim teams most of her life. "I always would tell my students if I ever got married in Alaska I was going to get married at the Nikiski pool," Wainwright said.

World's Tallest Man Given Custom Car

Since his recognition by Ukrainian record keepers four years ago, and by Guinness last year, people from all over Ukraine and the world have sent Leonid Stadnik outsized clothing, provided his home with running water and recently presented him with a giant bicycle. And on Monday, he got a new car, courtesy of President Viktor Yushchenko.

"Thanks to good people I have shoes and clothes," said the 37-year-old former veterinarian, who still lives with his mother. Stadnik says his dream is finding a soul mate, just like the former titleholder, China's Bao Xishun, who was married last year.
